

PROF. ANN MACLARNON
WITH A NEW HATFIELD
GRADUATE

Another Hatfield year has flown by – the Freshers that arrived at the beginning of Michaelmas Term are now fully embedded as loyal Hatfielders, practised singers of the College song, determined stormers of the Castle on Hatfield Day, and properly married as College parents in preparation for next year's arrivals. Those departing have experienced through their final rite of passage through the Cathedral in disbelief that they have reached the moment of transition from graduand to graduate and student to alumnus/a so quickly.

From the Master's Desk

With the sun shining and Durham at its very best, hopefully many good memories of this week's celebrations have been formed, and new graduates will soon return. Meanwhile the big world beckons, where we have every confidence that all they have learnt outside the classroom as well as in while resident with College has prepared them well to weather the many storms presently gathered.

Wishing everyone a very good summer,

Ann

Hatfield College
Durham University